

Quinnipiac Health Law Journal Subscription Form

A wholly student-run publication founded in 1995, the Quinnipiac Health Law Journal publishes two issues a year featuring discourse on both practical and theoretical issues in the fields of health law and policy, biomedical ethics, and medical-legal research.

The Quinnipiac Health Law Journal provides outside authors a forum for scholarly articles discussing new legal ideas and developments in health law. It also provides staff members with an opportunity to develop legal scholarship skills and publish scholarly articles called notes or case-notes.
